

More Trees for Burlington!

The re-foresting of our city continues.

This Saturday, Sept. 24, 300 more shade trees will be planted alongside Burlington's streets. Norway Maple, Crimson King Maple, and Shademaster Honey Locust will be planted by volunteers in a long-term effort to replace the 10,000 city trees lost to Dutch Elm disease. These new trees, each 8 to 10 feet tall, will grow to become magnificent shade trees, 50-60 feet in height, with a little care and attention from people living near them.

The Tree Planting Project, begun this past spring with almost 400 new trees planted throughout the city, was launched by the city in cooperation with Burlington Square Mall, The Merchants Bank, and other businesses and community support. The active efforts of our Park Department, Youth Office and hundreds of volunteers insured its success.

We have made an excellent beginning — but more volunteers and financial contributions are needed if our goals are to be reached. Please help this Saturday if you can. Come on out, meet your neighbor and plant a tree. Money is important, too. A $35 contribution will get another shade tree planted, staked, wired and fertilized next year in Burlington. An $8 contribution will buy a smaller tree for our nursery (coming next spring) which will later be moved to a street location.

Help the trees return to Burlington neighborhoods. Please fill out and send in this coupon with a check today. Thank you.

Yours for a greener Burlington,

Bernard Sanders
Mayor of Burlington

One of almost 400 trees planted by volunteers this past spring

Meet at these locations
Saturday, 8 a.m.,
to help plant trees
103 Loomis St.
52 Isham St.
46 Catherine St.

Lawrence Barnes School
North Street
corner Woodbury Road &
North Avenue

Delta Pal fraternity,
Summit Street

If possible, bring a shovel, pliers, or a sledgehammer.

YES! I'll help bring more shade trees to Burlington city streets.

Here's my contribution of ___$8, ___$16, ___$35, ___$70 to see that ___ more tree(s) are planted on Burlington streets.

Name _____

Address _____

Make checks payable to "Tree Project/Youth Office" and send with coupon to Youth Office, City Hall, Burlington, VT 05401.
For more information, call the Youth Office at City Hall, 858-9300.